MRS. BRECKINRIDGE DISCUSSES LEAGUE

Democratic Club Holds An Enthusiastic Meeting; Women Urged to Vote.

Mrs. Desha Breckinridge, one of the leading suffragists of the State and a delegate to the International Suffrage Convention at Geneva last August, addressed the Democratic Club last Thursday evening.

She spoke on the League of Nations.

"The League of Nations is a Monroe Doctrine for the whole world," said Mrs. Breckinridge and she further stated that the only advantage to be gained by staying out was the possibility of making secret treaties with Germany, Austria and Mexico.

She also urged every woman to avail herself of the opportunity to use the ballot. A great deal of interest was shown by the women present who constituted over half of the audience.

Miss Josephine Simrall, dean of women, introduced Mrs. Breckinridge.

HISTORIC UNION ELECTS OFFICERS

Famous Campus Literary Society Chooses Leaders For Ensuing Year.

Dillard Turner, '21, of the College of Law, was elected president of the historic Union Literary Society for the ensuing year at the meeting in the society rooms in the Alumni Hall last Friday evening. Turner has been an enthusiastic member of the Union for four years. He has taken part in several declamatory and oratorical contests and debates in which he helped to maintain the reputation which the society has held on Kentucky's campus for nearly fifty years.

The other officers chosen were: vice president, E. Zukerman, '21, College of Engineering; secretary, Robt. J. Raible, '21, College of Arts and Sciences; treasurer, Raymond Rodgers, '21, College of Arts and Sciences; attorney-general, Robert Mitchell, '22, College of Agriculture; sergeant-at-arms, C. S. Carter, '23, College of Arts and Sciences; librarian, A. Alperin, '23, College of Engineering. In accordance with its custom the retiring president, N. B. Conkwright, '22, College of Law, was elected janitor.

The Union is the oldest literary society west of the Alleghenies. Its charter, granted to it by the Legislature of the State of Kentucky in 1873, hangs on the clubroom wall. Some of the best known Kentucky graduates who are in public life today were members of the Union Literary Society. Former Governor A. O. Stanley, Congressman King Swope, Virgil Chapman and many others, were Union men.

At the meeting last Friday, C. S. Carter exhibited a gold medal presented by the Union Literary society to his father, who won the oratorical contest in 1888.

This year the Union plans not only to uphold the traditions of a half century but also to add new laurels

GREGG PRESIDENT OF JUNIOR CLASS

Frances Marsh and C. V. Watson Will Publish 1922 Kentuckian.

The Engineers made a landslide of the Junior class election Thursday, by electing their entire ticket. Ed. Gregg was elected president; Elizabeth Kimbrough, vice president; Sarah Metcalf Piper, secretary; Arthur Shanklin, treasurer; Burton Prewitt, orator; Frances Marsh, Junior editor of Kentuckian; C. V. Watson, Junior business manager of Kentuckian.

Gregg is a student in the College of Engineering, a member of the Sigma Nu fraternity, the Mystic Thirteen honorary society and the Sigma Tau musical fraternity. He is Art Editor of the 1921 Kentuckian. He won his "K" in baseball in 1918, and is at present a candidate for the varsity football squad. His home is in Louisville.

Frances Marsh, Maysville, was elected Junior Editor of the annual and by virtue of this election will assume the duties of Editor-in-chief of the 1922 Kentuckian next fall, is a member of Chi Omega sorority and is prominent in the journalistic activities of the University. She was a member of the Kernel staff last year and was one of the editors of the University Bulletin.

C. V. Watson, Brooksville, was elected Junior Business Manager of the 1921 Kentuckian, and will be Business Manager of the annual next year. He is a member of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity, treasurer of the Y. M. C. A., and assistant manager of the football team.

GERALDINE FARRAR TO BE HERE FRIDAY

Geraldine Farrar, assisted by Edgar Schofield, Ada Sassoli and Claude Gotthelf, will give the second program of the Artist Concert Series at Woodland Auditorium Friday night, October 15.

Farrar, who is considered by many to be the greatest gift that America has yet made to the art of music, seems to be especially created to embody the ideals of modern composers who demand not merely beauty of singing but breadth of action and attractiveness of personality.

Ada Sassoli, the brilliant harpist with Miss Farrar on the tour the latter is making of this country, is one of the most skilled performers on the harp now before the public. Miss Sassoli is young and handsome, and when she is with her harp she makes an irresistible picture. In every city she is singled out by demonstrative critics and commended for the beauty of her performance. She is said by many to be the greatest harpist in America today. She has proven herself to be both a virtuoso and an interpreter of first rank.

GRAHAM URGES WAR MOTHERS TO SUPPORT MEMORIAL BUILDING

Herbert D. Graham made a talk in the interest of the Memorial Building at a meeting of the Fayette county chapter of American War Mothers, Tuesday afternoon at the parish house of Christ Church Cathedral.

KENTUCKIAN WILL BE PLANNED LIKE PAGEANT

1921 Annual Will Record Activities as a Panorama; Contest Announced

The Kentuckian of 1921, as it is now being planned by the editor-in-chief, Adele Slade, and her staff, will be on an entirely different plan than any other year book that has ever been put out at Kentucky. It is built on the plan of a pageant, which will present a panorama of the activities of the University the past year, and endeavor to tell what each organization, movement or activity has contributed to the success and progress of the University.

The aim this year is to make the Kentuckian an original production, and one worthy of the University. Each division of the Kentuckian is being planned on an entirely new basis, and the Kentuckian staff will welcome any new and original ideas, concerning any division of the work.

A prize of $10 is being offered to the one who submits the best set of a dozen snapshots; a second prize of a Kentuckian, will be given the person submitting the next best set. A subscription contest will be held later in the season.

The Kentuckian office this year is located in the basement of the Library building.

STROLLERS HOLD ANNUAL ELECTION

Herndon Evans Reelected Stage Manager; Milton Revill, President.

At the opening meeting of the Strollers, the dramatic organization of the University, officers were elected and committees were chosen to lead the club throughout the year 1920-21. Herndon Evans, stage manager of "The Climbers," was reelected to stage manager this year. Milton Revill, of "Mice and Men" fame, was elected president of the organization for the ensuing year. Other officers of the Strollers are: Martha Buckman, vice president; Burton Prewitt, secretary-treasurer; William Finn, business manager and Fred Augsburg, advertising manager.

The committee for the selection of a play for the 1921 production is composed of the following: Fred Augsburg, chairman; Carlisle Chenault and Mamie Woods.

The new Stroller room will be furnished by the following committee: Robert Mitchell, chairman; Mary Lyons and Claribel Kay.

The social committee which will function throughout the entire year is composed of Frances Marsh, chairman; Martha Buckman, Mary James, Katherine Herring and Gus Becker. Plans were discussed concerning Amateur Night. The following committee will take care of the new talent which appears on Hallowe'en: Herndon Evans, chairman, Mamie Woods, Mary Downing, Milton Revill and Auryne Bell.

Robert Mitchell will again act as property man for the production this year and Frances Marsh will take care of the publicity.

SCORE BY WIRELESS

E. L. Baugh has been receiving the scores from the world series over the wireless telegraph in the Civil Building thirty minutes before the Herald and Leader get them from the Associated Press wire.

Preparations are being made to receive the Harvard-Centre game play by play, and also the Miami-Kentucky game Saturday.

Nominations For Officers Must Be Made at Least a Week Ahead.

The Sophomore class held a class meeting in the chapel last Thursday afternoon. The meeting was called to order by Dean Melcher, who read the rules for the tug-of-war and discussed a plan for electing class officers. His plan met with the immediate approval of those present and a unanimous vote was given to use it in the present election. His plan was to get away from the undemocratic manner in which all former elections have been conducted and to establish for this class as well as for those which shall follow, a set standard entrusting to candidates the responsibilities of the office.

In previous elections the successful nominee was the one who belonged to the college which had the greater majority. This year the candidates were nominated from the entire class. The names of the nominees have been posted on the bulletin board in the Main Building. Those not present at class meeting should consult the list and consider the competency of candidates.

Ryan Ringo was elected temporary chairman.

The following were nominated for the consideration of the class: president, Bruce Fuller, Stuart Neff, R. L. Ringo, B. L. Pribble.

Vice president: Mary Elizabeth Downing, Elizabeth Allen, Louise Connell, Dorothy Blatz.

Secretary: Kathleen Renick, Katherine Conroy, Irene McNamara, Margaret Griffin.

Treasurer: H. D. Brattisford, A. B. Cammack, J. Burks, C. Humphries, J. Shouse, J. W. Selph.

AMATEUR NIGHT WILL BE HELD HALLOWE'EN

Prospective Footlight Stars To Display Histrionic Ability in Chapel

"The last night of October
Is the strangest ever seen,
For 'tis then that the wild old witches

Go a-dancing on the green."

"Haste thee, nymph and bring with thee" costumes, make-up, properties and ideas for the first Stroller tryout October 25. Procure your blanks from the post office right away, make them out in full concealing none of the family secrets, and hand them to the first Stroller you meet coming out of the Ada Meade, Applications filed in that way always bring results. Although the processes seem a bit involved, be sure apply: every one tries—at least once.

"Amateur Night," Friday, October 29, promises to display to the world hitherto unknown talent, along terpsichorean and other lines. The usual prizes of five dollars in gold will be awarded to the best individual act and the best group act.

THE DRAMA

By Fred K. Augeburg

Do You Know That—

San Francisco has an all-night playhouse which is maintained for the benefit of show people and others whose occupations necessitate their working at such hours as preclude their attending the regular shows?

It is expected that the new theatre will add greatly to the night life of San Francisco. All performances are under strict police supervision.

An article written by Prof. E. F. Farquhar of the Department of English was published in a recent number of The Theatre Magazine. The article gives an account of the progress of the Campus Playhouse and contains much of interest to those concerned with the workings of the Little Theatre on the campus.

Despite the fact that capacity audiences ruled at every performance of "Ziegfeld Follies" in the New Amsterdam Theatre, the New York run has terminated. The show enjoyed a record engagement of seventeen consecutive weeks in the big town.

Freshmen—

Don't forget that Amateur Night is only two weeks off. If you think you have dramatic ability and would like to become a member of the Strollers and be eligible for the annual play, don't fail to come out.

The Stagecrafters of Transylvania College will stage Hall Caine's "The Christian" this fall at The Lexington Opera House.

Eddie Leonard, seen here last year in "Roly Boly Eyes," is being featured this year on the Keith vaudeville circuit.

Preston Cherry, advertising manager and a member of the cast of the "Climbers," is practicing law in Bowling Green, Kentucky.

Geraldine Farrar will make her first appearance in Lexington tonight at the Woodland Auditorium. The house is practically sold out, and indications point to a capacity audience.

Thomas Dixon's "Robert E. Lee" had its first southern presentation at the Lexington Opera House last Tuesday and Wednesday. The theme deals with a time when the grandeur and greatness of men whose struggles for righteousness and principle were rewarded only by slander, contempt and malicious abuse.

Dixon is also author of "The Clansman," "The Birth of a Nation" and "A Man of the People."

M. Cecil Noe, former student in the University, and now cornetist with the Chaplins, a vaudeville troupe, is visiting his parents, Professor, and Mrs. J. T. C. Noe for a few days.

The new Times Square Theatre in Forty-second street was opened Thursday night with Edgar Selwyn's "The Mirage." Florence Reed was seen in the title role.

LORRAINE WEST WINS SCHOLARSHIP

Lorraine West, of Mayfield, has been awarded the scholarship of $300 given annually by the United Daughters of Confederacy to one of its members.

She was one of the winners of the popularity contest two years ago and is a member of Alpha Xi Delta sorority.

"STORY BOOK" BALL AT PATTERSON HALL

Student Government Association Gives Party in Honor of Freshmen.

The "Movie Actress and Story Book Ball," given by the Student Government Association at Patterson Hall last Saturday night, was a decided success.

Each woman was asked to come dressed to represent some movie actor or actress, or the title of a book. As a result, Theda Bara, Annette Kellerman, Maggie Jiggs, Pearl White, Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch, Miss Minerva and William Green Hill, Sentimental Tommy, Robin Hood, and many other well known characters of the film and fiction worlds appeared.

The program of the evening began with a grand march in which all in costume took part. A contest was held in which each character was presented and all present tried to guess what she represented. Fannie Heller received the prize for this contest. The prize for the best costume was awarded jointly to Margaret Foreman, who represented "The Raven," and to Affie Hammond, who represented "The Kentucky Cardinal." Honorable mention for clever costumes was given to Anna Russell Moore as "A Comedy of Errors," Dorothy Watson as "Robin Hood," Gladys Whitford as "Thedara Bara" and Bruce Richardson as "Annette Kellerman."

Various informal games were played, refreshments were served, and a general good time was enjoyed by all present.

SOCIAL ROOM FOR CADETS

Uniforms to Be Changed; Cadet Hops Start After Thanksgiving.

According to the plans of Colonel Freeman and Major Tucker several rooms are to be furnished in the Alumni building for the convenience of the officers and cadets of the University. Besides this other plans for the betterment of military affairs have been made.

Freshmen now drill on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday; Sophomores on Monday, Friday and Saturday. It has been arranged for the cadets to drill together according to their classes and the College in which they are matriculated. Thus Arts and Science Freshmen being assigned to the same company and the same plan is carried out in the other colleges.

As soon as physical examinations are completed, uniforms will be provided and drill will begin in earnest. The uniforms will be slightly different from the ones used in former years. Instead of the high collar the coat will be open at the throat and will have lapels and in place of the hats worn before military caps will be used.

The cadet hops will be continued this year, beginning soon after Thanksgiving and closing with the annual Military Ball.

U. S. Military Academy Changes Height Ruling

The War Department announces that the minimum height requirement for admission to the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, which has for many years been sixty-four inches for candidates who are seventeen years of age and sixty-five inches for those who are eighteen years of age, and upward, has been changed to sixty-four inches for candidates of all ages. This change has been made in the interests of uniformity, inasmuch as the minimum height requirement for applicants for commissions from the ranks, or from civil life, is sixty-four inches.

Major Tucker has asked that this be published in the interest of some of the cadets who may wish to enter the Military Academy, and whom this change might affect.

Y. M. C. A.

By George Gregory.

About two hundred men and women students attended the first joint meeting of the Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. held at Patterson Hall Sunday night. Mary Archer Bell led the meeting and Dr. Benjamin J. Bush, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church of Lexington, spoke on "Heart Vision." The address was heartily enjoyed by all those present.

Dr. Winfield Scott Hall, former professor of Physiology and Hygiene at Northwestern University, spoke in chapel the fourth hour Wednesday to the men students. Dr. Hall is one of the most foremost men in the country in medical research and is a noted writer and lecturer. He is now serving on the mission board of the Presbyterian church.

Bible study classes have been organized in the Alpha Tau Omega, Phi Delta Theta, Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity houses. It is expected that by the end of the week such classes will have been organized in all the fraternity houses and in all rooming houses where a sufficient number of men are lodged. Secretary Bart N. Peak went to Cynthiana Saturday to referee a football game.

LOUISVILLE CLUB WILL MEET MONDAY

The Louisville Club will hold its second meeting Monday at 3:45 p. m. in room 205, White Hall. Officers will be elected and plans made for the coming year.

At the meeting last Monday it was decided to hold meetings once a month during the ensuing year, probably on the first or second Monday in the month at 3:45. The following committee was appointed to advertise the next meeting: Mary Elizabeth James, Katherine Weakley, Frank Linkenburgh, Ed. Gans, Herbert Baker, Gus Becker, George Baumgarten and R. J. Raible.

CADET BAND LEADS STUDENT PARADE

As a preliminary to the Maryville game the men students of the University staged a parade just to let Lexington know that there was to be a game on Stoll field. The fact that the stands were crowded shows how successful they were.

Led by the cadet band in uniform, the parade of students, half a thousand in number, formed at two o'clock Saturday afternoon on the University campus and marched down Limestone in two files. The procession marched up High street and across the viaduct to Main, thence down Main and out Limestone to Stoll field in time for the game.

Students Asked to Slow Up and Let Campus Grass Rest

Speed limit, fifteen miles an hour. Do not park on the grass.

These two regulations have been added to the list of rules University students are this year asked to observe. Notices of the automobile restrictions have been posted on the bulletin boards on the campus. They are necessary on account of the congested condition of the campus, it is stated.

Students owning automobiles who live near the University are requested to leave the cars at home in order to avoid congestion.

THE KENTUCKY KERNEL

Published every Friday throughout the College year by the student body of the University of Kentucky.

The Kentucky Kernel is the official newspaper of the University. It is issued with a view of furnishing to its subscribers all the college news of Kentucky, together with a digest of items of interest concerning the universities of other states and Canada.

FOOTBALL.

The Kernel is in receipt of an anonymous letter, evidently from an indignant student, complaining that certain students were heard to make derogatory remarks about some of the Varsity players at a recent football game. After pointing out that the player makes the sacrifices required by the game because he loves the game and the University he represents, the writer declares that "nothing but praise should be given our fighting Wildcats."

The Kernel hastens to place itself in hearty accord with these sentiments. Criticism is a good thing; it is necessary to progress. But let not honest criticism sink to the depths of derogation. Perhaps it would also be a good plan for the student to save even his criticisms from the ears of strangers.

Following this same line of thought, The Kernel wishes to call the attention of freshmen and any others to whom these remarks may address themselves, to the fact that it is not the custom of the University to indulge in abusive language against an opposing athletic team. Kentucky and the University of Kentucky have long been noted for their courtesy and hospitality and we advise freshmen that it will be well to bear this in mind when attending athletic games.

THE SENIOR COURT

The sight of numerous footprints in the soft ground near the campus cannon a few days ago is taken as an indication that the Senior Court has found work to do. We hope that no case more serious than "being a Freshman" has required the "immediate and individual" attention of that body. The rules adopted by the Court this year are models of reasonableness and any violation of them certainly deserves action. Rule 5 is a distinctive mark of progress. The Court deserves the congratulations of the entire University from the President to Doc Pierre for the adoption of Rule 8. While it is hoped that these two rules especially will be strictly obeyed, we do not fear that violations will receive lax handling.

Just by the way, we were in the Library the other day and noticed that the picture of Dr. Patterson which hangs there was slightly off its keel. That made us wonder how often those pictures are dusted.

The Procrustean Bed

A Department of Prejudices

By Troy Lawson Perkins

"Let us promenade our prejudices"—Stendhal.

NOTE: It is related in ancient Greek fables that there lived in the high mountains a ferocious giant, by name Procrustes. In his solitary castle he kept a bed. Every traveller who passed by his abode was asked in to spend the night. Procrustes assigned the unfortunate this bed; if he were too long, he was lopped off to the requisite length; if too short, he was stretched until he fitted the bed. As you have no doubt by this time suspected, we are Procrustes, and this department is our bed. We have ideas, opinions, prejudices; and we are arbitrary. It was Nietzsche, and not Pollyanna, who said: "Be hard." However, we hope at times to provide a little bedroom farce, by way of horseplay on the ideas of the homo boobus, including ourselves.

SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA
FROM CINCINNATI

On Wednesday, October 6, the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra gave two concerts at the Woodland Auditorium, matinee and evening. The organization was brought here under the auspices of Miss Anna Chandler Goff, and the Lexington College of Music. The same management presents Geraldine Farrar in a concert tonight, and, later in the season, Madame Schumann-Heink, and the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, direction of Josef Stransky.

The Cincinnati Symphony carries seventy-six pieces on tour, though all of them were unable to get on the Woodland stage at one time; the "at home" strength of the orchestra is ninety-seven pieces, I understand. The organization which performed here ran rather heavily to strings. This was particularly noticeable in the third movement and the statement of the first theme of the symphony. The horns got a chance in the two Wagner numbers, however, as they always do in Wagner's music. The hardest work was done on the homeric complexity of "The Ride of the Valkyries," at the afternoon performance; the finest execution was evidenced in the Beethoven Symphony, in the evening.

Some interest attached to the appearance of Eugene Ysaye as conductor of the second performance. In directing he does not use the more modern lateral method. His gestures are homely and he is generous with them, yet his control over his men is tense. He seemed a little indifferent and bent on getting through. The embarrassment due to the lights was handled in excellent fashion; the Tchaikowsky "Andante Cantabile," on which they were engaged, was carried through to a perfect finish.

The afternoon program was somewhat in the nature of a "pop" concert. Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance" overture, and the Wagner "Ride of the Valkyries," from "Die Walkure," were both well liked. The biggest hand, however, was given to the Tchaikowsky "Nutcracker Suite," particularly the ravishing "Waltz of the Flowers. Robert Millard Russell's rendering of Dudley Buck's "Come Where the Lindsens Bloom," was encored persistently.

The evening program was filled with musical gems. Weber's "Oberon" overture, according to the program, is the foremost of romantic overtures; so far as I am concerned, it is the greatest of all overtures, and they've been writing them a long time since its birth. The "Tannhauser," which came last on the program, is by no means a negligible quantity, however. The "Pilgrim's Chorus," and the Venusberg music battled once more for supremacy, with the Pilgrims winning, as scheduled. In fact this is my chief objection to "Tannhauser": it is too darned moral. I prefer my Bible straight, and "Tannhauser" always reminds me of an oratorio, with the Venusberg sequence thrown in as a come-on. Swinburne's version is much more comforting in which Tannhauser returns to the Venusberg and whoops her up and sparks the gals; Wagner leaves him singing psalms with a crowd of bluenoses. Sometimes I don't blame Nietzsche. The "Vaise Triste" by Sibellus is a weird piece, more sinister, if anything, than the "Danse Macabre" of Saint Saens. Its rendition, following directly after the symphony, aroused several sleepy heads that could not go the whole way with Beethoven. The "Bell Song" from "Lakme," shares popularity with the "Lucia" mad scene, as a test of virtuosity for our rising young sopranos. Miss Jessie Christian ran her trills and cadenzas in very neat fashion. For an encore, Miss Christian rendered "Solweig's Song" from Grieg's "Peer Gynt" and, as "Solweig's is one of our very best little arias for concert purposes, the number was very pleasing.

The chief event of the evening, however, was the Beethoven Fifth Symphony in C Minor, opus 67. The Fifth was a logical choice for the provinces; it was pretty sure to be that, or else the Schubert "Unfinished," or the Dvorak "New World." There is only one thing better than hearing the Beethoven Fifth, and that is hearing the Beethoven Ninth. Ysaye gave real gusto to his reading of this number, though his merger of the third and fourth movements made the whole seem a little tedious. If the C Minor means anything, it is a deep skepticism. If man believed what it teaches, he would destroy himself. It is the most skeptical thing ever written on a staff with bars. It has been called "hypnotic;" it is worse, it is impenetrable. The more you hear it, the less sure you are of it. The first four tremendous notes are a ringing challenge, and they echo throughout the work. The gem of the symphony is in the first phrase of the scherzo. Its weird questioning is the noblest query of man into the meaning of human destiny. The answer is, of course, given directly: there is no meaning, no purpose. Ironically, and quite properly, the question and the mocking answer are couched in the scherzo movement. The Finale is a piece of cheese compared with the rest of the work, and is unworthy of Beethoven. But the Andante is very slow and very beautiful, and lulls one into complacency like a wood fire, or a gum drop, or a pretty girl.

Irony: A shapely young thing carrying around a text entitled: "The Human Body."

Ashland: the tenement of Clay.

Home Ec. Freshman: "And do they have music in the cafeteria?"
Ag. Ditto: "Oh, yes, they serve soup."

To anyone taking a calm view of the world, it is plain to be seen that it is getting steadily worse. It was only last week, that a theatre calling itself the "Ada Meade" advertised the fact that a company of bathing girls would appear there for the whole week. Sure enough, these women did appear, and the theatre was thronged with, not only men, but women also. The worst point of all, though, was the large number of children in attendance at this shameless entertainment. At every performance the lobby was filled, and the line extended down the street for two blocks. Such crowds as these to see such a show are shameful. I could scarcely get a seat.

There was an unfortunate occurrence on the campus yesterday. A freshman referred to Lexington as a "racy" town. The undertaker notified his parents.

Since the development of society to its present high order personal intelligence has become one of the most vital factors of every day life. The average person spends more than an hour a day, which in a lifetime reaches a total of more than four hundred days, in getting information of his friends and acquaintances. This is obtained through several publications, in the production of which this country is so prolific, in friendly intercourse and by correspondence. The demand is there and evident. College men and women are no exception to the rule.

One alumnus declared to the writer that he would gladly pay his dues a dozen times and subscribe for all the college papers if he could only learn where are the members of his own class and what they are doing. This is typical of the general situation. That strong desire to know the whereabouts of class mates for the renewal of friendships, is natural. The fact of its existence is a credit to society and to any institution claiming such people among its sons and daughters. It augurs well.

The greatest happiness can never be attained in a life of seclusion. Friendships are a vital element. There are none better or more lasting than such as are fostered among ambitious young folk associated at the time when idealism is an outstanding characteristic. Their renewal will mean much to every man and woman so reached.

You can have a part in this. Through your informing the Alumni Secretary of your whereabouts and your activities this intelligence will be placed at the disposal of your classmates. If you will supply such information of others the scope will be widened. Thus can be laid the foundation for a compact and useful organization instead of the loosely knit association of the present. Classmates and our Alma Mater rely upon you.

PASTEL

A little man, at half-past six,
Had tried two hours to cross a city mix;

Sufficed at last with deep chagrin,
He shut his eyes, plunged madly in.
But a reckless driver, driving fast,
Struck him cold like a wintry blast.

The crowd surged round the man, now dead;
"For such is Life," the poet said,
"Dam careless guy," the policeman said.
The city roared and rolled and sped,
In quest of gold, and meat, and bread.

KENTUCKY MEN TAKE PRIZES AT STATE FAIR

Several men did good work in the Student Judging Contest at the State Fair this year. The animals they judged were of fine type and in many instances the placing was difficult, but the hard work they did at the University during the past year in preparation for the Fair enabled them to return with several prizes.

The classes judged and records made are as follows:

Mules and Jacks—First—H. G. Sellards; Second—J. H. Atkerson; Third—Frank Wedekemper.

Dairy and Beef Cattle — First—D. Y. Dunn; Second—Harry W. Farmer; Third—H. G. Sellards; Fourth—Frank Wedekemper; Fifth—J. H. Atkerson.

Sheep and Hogs—First—H. G. Sellards; Second—D. Y. Dunn; Third—J. H. Atkerson; Fourth—Frank Wedekemper; Fifth—Harry W. Farmer.

VALUE OF FOREST ON FARM LAND

Department of Agriculture Advises
Farmers to Save the Woods.

When casting about for methods of increasing the farm income, one way of accomplishing that aim may be overlooked. Too often just one idea enters the head of the owner of small tract of timber and that is, to cut it down and clear up the land.

Still, if that timber were preserved, how surprising the results would be. Small tracts can be handled so that year by year the timber would become more and more valuable and prove very profitable to the owner. Here is what the United States Department of Agriculture has to offer in this regard:

Forestry Increases the Farm Income
By—

1. Making waste land yield a profit by growing timber on poor soils, steep slopes, rocky lands, wet lands, unused corners, gullied or eroded lands.

2. Furnishing paying employment for men and teams during the winter.

3. Utilizing timber better on the farm and avoiding waste by cutting low stumps and small tops, using substitute woods in construction, treating nonlasting woods.

4. Increasing crop yields by planting forest tree windbreaks.

5. Growing more and better timber on the farm through protecting the woods from fire and overgrazing; selecting for cutting the mature, defective, over-crowded, and inferior kinds of trees, and leaving the straight, thrifty, and better kinds; planting to fill up openings in woodlands.

6. Marketing the higher grades of wood products direct to consumers at fair prices in the form of saw logs, poles, piling, cooperage bolts, handle bolts, posts, pulp wood, firewood, spoke blocks, tannin wood and bark.

Trees to Cut For Improving the Woods
Trees which are well suited for firewood, and the removal of which will be an improvement to the remaining trees in the stand.

Trees which have been overstopped by others and have their growth stunted.

Diseased trees, or trees seriously injured by insect attacks, or trees extremely liable to such injury; for example, chestnut in the region subject to blight or birch in the gipsy-moth area.

Badly fire-scarred trees.

Trees of the less valuable species, such as beech, birch, black oak, black-jack oak, or black gum, crowding the more valuable sugar maple, white or short-leaf pines, yellow popular, or white oak.

Crooked trees and large-crowned, shortboled trees which will not make good lumber and which are crowding or overtopping others.

Slow-growing trees crowding fast-growing species of equal value.

Sound dead trees both standing and down.

DAIRY TEAM WINS HONORS AT SHOW

Kentucky Receives Third Place in Judging Contest.

The Dairy Team has returned from Chicago where it placed the University of Kentucky high up in the list of the twenty-one universities competing for honors, when it won third place at the National Dairy Show Saturday. Sixty-three men coming from some of the best dairy states in the country and from states that are much older than Kentucky in the matter of production of dairy products, were judging at the same time with Kentucky.

Those who made the trip are: Harry W. Farmer, Standford; D. Y. Dunn; Dexter; H. G. Sellards, Prestonburg. They were accompanied by Prof. J. J. Hooper. The universities represented at the show in the order in which they finished in the contest are: Kansas, Iowa, Kentucky, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Missouri, Tennessee, Maryland, Massachusetts, Wisconsin, Washington, Connecticut, South Dakota, New Hampshire, South Carolina, New Jersey, Minnesota, Cornell, Nebraska, North Carolina and Ohio.

Juan P. and Enrique Gavati, Buenos Aires, South America, visited the Experiment Station this week. These men are large owners and livestock dealers in Argentina, and are making a tour of the United States to visit the large farms, and meet breeders of livestock. They spent two days in Lexington and surrounding community and made the statement that the Blue Grass farms are not surpassed by any in the United States.

Wednesday noon the faculty of the College of Agriculture had a get-together in the form of a "feed" in the Experiment Station.

J. O. Barkman, Department of Dairying, received a telegram from Professor in dairying, University of Tennessee, notifying him that the Dairy Team would arrive in Lexington Tuesday night on its way to the National Dairy Show, Chicago. Wednesday the team had a work-out judging the herd, Experiment Station Dairy, and from there a trip was made to Cold Stream, located on Newtown pike. While here the members of the team were entertained in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Barkman on Columbia Avenue.

A good report in Cow Testing Association work comes from Oldham county, of which "Nemo" McCarty, '16, is County Agent. W. E. Bronaugh, Minnesota, is at the head of the Association. May Aron DeKol, 391943, a three-year Holstein cow owned by C. W. Smith & Son of that county, holds the record, 19.3 pounds butter fat in seven days. This is an average of 3.7 pounds butter every 24 hours. Her record in this State is excelled only by Clover Farm Pontiac Lady, 347302—a Holstein owned by Cold Stream Farm with a record of 21.3 pounds butter fat. The seven days test was run by Farmer, of the senior class, Agriculture, and Mason, a short course man of last year.

A year's leave of absence has been granted Professor J. S. McHargue, chemist at the Experiment Station, in order that he might take advanced work at Columbia University.

FRESHMEN VICTORS IN ANNUAL TUG-OF-WAR

The annual tug-of-war between the freshmen and sophomore classes held last Friday afternoon over Clifton pond resulted, as usual, in an easy victory for the freshmen. The sophomores were given the choice of sides and the cable was divided equally between the two classes, but the Freshmen outnumbered the sophomores about one hundred men.

At the crack of the starter's pistol the freshmen started and in spite of the hard fighting of the sophs, the latter were dragged into the cold waters of the pond. The victors staged the usual snake dance and "parade" through the streets of Lexington immediately after the event.

In Selecting a University—

For a college education, there are five things to be taken into consideration:

1. The men at the head of the Institution.
2. The scholastic standing and ability of the Teaching Staff.
3. The location and advantages of environment.
4. Equipment, buildings, laboratories and libraries.
5. Cost.

In all these respects the University of Kentucky commends itself to those seeking a higher institution in which to carry on their education.

All Departments, including Liberal Arts, Sciences, Agriculture, Law, Education, Mining, Civil, Electrical and Mechanical Engineering.

The Government needs trained men and women; college training will bring the result.

KENTUCKY ROMPS OVER MARYVILLE

Bobby Lavin's Spectacular Broken Field Running Is Feature.

SCORE 31 TO 0.

Coach Juneau's Kentucky Wildcats displayed real wildness Saturday afternoon when they rode roughshod over the Maryville College gridiron warriors from Tennessee, on the long end of a 31-0 score. Incidentally it was the second victory for the Blue and White defenders and made two defeats for the visitors, who were blanked by the University of Tennessee 47-0 earlier in the season.

The outstanding feature of the game was "Bobby" Lavin's spectacular field running which kept the spectators on their toes throughout the contest. Time and again the diminutive but slippery quarterback wriggled his way past the clutching hands of opponents for twenty and thirty yard gains. In addition he scored two touchdowns and kicked a goal, bringing his stock for the day up to thirteen plus.

Bruce Fuller, the Blue and White star half back was out of the game on account of injuries. Wilhelm, who, played the position in Fuller's absence did very commendably, making himself ultra-conspicuous by a forty-five yard run which soon after accounted for a touchdown.

Heber, last year's choice for second All-Southern end and Wildcat captain in 1918 was back in the game, his eligibility having been proven by the Senate. Notwithstanding his fumble at the start of the game, Heber was true to his old form, fighting every minute, and breaking up many of the Maryville plays.

The Wildcat supremacy was so prominent that the visitors were able to make but one first down on a long forward pass. The Redmen, however, fought gamely and were at their best when the local eleven threatened to score. Several times the Kentucky machine by long end runs and smashing line attacks, brought the pigskin within scoring distance but lacked the deciding punch to carry it over. At these points the Maryville bunch impressed the spectators with the fighting spirit.

At exactly 3:00 o'clock, with the stands filled to capacity, referee Hinton blew his whistle and Beck, the visiting fullback kicked to Heber, who fumbled the ball after carrying it twenty yards. Maryville was unable to penetrate the Wildcat line and punted to Lavin, who carried the ball forward ten yards. The Blue and White crew could not get started and was forced to punt. Server functioning. After the pigskin had changed hands a few times, Juneau's proteges came to the conclusion that they had enough practice and set the ball in motion for a tally. It came at the end of the first quarter when Lavin carried the ball twenty-five yards around end over the opponents' line.

The beginning of the second quarter recorded another touchdown for the home team, when Shanklin went over. No more scoring was done until the second half, the Tennesseans holding on for grim death whenever the Kentuckians threatened. That one final punch which means so much to a strong offensive team was lacking in Saturday's contest.

The second half looked brighter and more snap and fewer fumbles resulted in the playing. The Cats made two tallies this period on long runs by Lavin and Wilhelm. The last quarter resulted in one touchdown by Shanklin. With about five minutes more to play, all the second string men were sent to fill Kentucky's team. The subs played well and at one time threatened to score on a forward pass.

CROSS COUNTRY TEAM TO START PRACTICE

Coach Huchelt has announced that the University will have a cross country team this fall and will schedule meets with formidable rivals this season and in the spring.

The coach wants every one who can run the half mile, mile and two mile stretches to come out for the team at once. Show some real Kentucky spirit if you can run and come out for the cross country team. Report immediately for practice; fall workouts for spring events being especially necessary.

A sweater and special letter will be given to members of the cross country team. One meet is already scheduled for Thanksgiving Day at Louisville and several men will be taken.

A cross country team means a great deal to a university and the men out for the team can be assured that their interest will be appreciated and they will be doing something for old Blue and White, which should be compensation enough for any real Kentuckian.

The track team, in addition to engaging in several dual meets in the spring will make the trip to New Orleans to compete in the S. I. A. A. program there.

WILDCATS TRY MIAMI

The gridiron warriors of old Kentucky will board a Southern Railway train tonight and start on a jaunt to the Buckeye state in search of scalps. Tomorrow afternoon they will meet one of the strongest teams in Ohio when they tackle Miami University at Oxford.

The Wildcats are in good condition and Coach Juneau is confident that his team will bring glory to Kentucky and humble the pride of their northern neighbors, although they will have to play real football to do so. Miami has an unusually strong team this year having defeated Kenyon last week to the tune of 47 to 0.

Champions of the blue-clad warriors are confident that under the expert coaching of "Injun Bill," Kentucky will make it three straight tomorrow afternoon.

Captain Murphree was especially visible in the fight, often getting through to muss up the opponents' teamwork. Colpitts, Fest, Server, and Heber were also prominent in their defensive department, executing brilliant tackles behind the visitors' line.

BOLES TRIES TO REACH WILDCATS FOR HOME COMING

An effort to locate every "K" man now away from the University is being made by Athletic Director S. A. Boles as a part of the preparations for Home Coming, November 13, the day of the Centre-State game on Stoll Field.

"Daddy" is trying to have a large representation of the old Wildcats at the reunion. These letter men will be awarded a position of honor on the side lines on the big day and will go to first place in all the phases of the home coming program. The aid of every alumnus in locating the letter men is requested by Mr. Boles, who has a record of very few of the Wildcats who played before 1900.

Some of the staldest of the alumni have announced that they will cross the continent to be on hand at a big combination football game and reunion. Their coming on November 13 will be encouraged by the class secretaries, by the fraternities and several organizations on the campus and by the dean of colleges and other officials of the University.

CLASS GAMES

Interclass rivalry is mounting high on the campus. The freshmen are all set for their first match, having been on the field for two weeks whipping their candidates into condition. The second year men and the juniors are also practicing every day, each team confident of capturing the series.

The schedule of the games has not been announced, but very likely the "sophs" will meet the seniors, who are not practicing up to the time of this writing, in the first contest and the "frosh" will in all probability line up against the juniors, who at present seem to be the most formidable contenders.

Experimental Work on Concrete Aggregates

By D. V. Terrell

The Department of Civil Engineering is preparing to conduct a set of tests on concrete in compression, for the purpose of determining; first, the on stone and the strength produced relation between the per cent of wear in concrete in which the stone is used as an aggregate; second, a comparison of the physical test on gravel with the strength produced in concrete when gravel is used as an aggregate; third, a comparison of the physical test on the various sands found in the State to determine the relation between the physical test and the strength produced in concrete; fourth, a series of tests on specimens moulded in the field at the point where the concrete is being used, to determine if concrete mixed in the field produces the same strength as that mixed in the laboratory.

These tests will require the making and testing of some 300 12" x 6" concrete cylinders and will extend over the remainder of the year, the results obtained will be furnished to the State Department of Public Roads and will be used in the future design of concrete structures.

D. V. Terrell, professor of Civil Engineering and Testing Engineer for the Department of Public Roads will have charge of the test. John A. Bitterman, Assistant Testing Engineer, will conduct the routine work, a large part of which will be done by Seniors in the department of Civil Engineering.

Professor Crouse, of metallurgy, is conducting a series of distillation experiments from which he hopes to ascertain the quantity of crude oil available from a ton of black shale. This shale of Devonian origin underlies all of Kentucky with the exception of the Blue Grass region, and the samples have been taken from the outcrop which occurs at a radius of fifty miles about Lexington as a center.

Crude oil does not appear as such in the shale but as "kerogen," which is distilled by means of heat. The products are crude oil, ammonium sulfate, and probably some potash. The crude oil is a paraffine base oil, compares favorably with the high grade petroleum, is rather high in gasoline and benzene content, and contains, presumably, considerable lubricating compounds.

From the experiments completed it has been found that about one-half barrel of crude oil can be distilled from a ton of shale, and by the use of super-heated steam and by scrubbing the gas, the yield can be increased considerably in quality as well as in quantity.

In discussing the future of the proposed industry, Professor Crouse says that the possibilities of reaching a production basis are good and that the three requirements that must be met before the greatest economic possibilities can be realized are sufficient capital, to start with the proper report and first class technical management.

Practically all the work that has been done on Kentucky shales up to this date has been done by Professor Crouse.

Do you know that over thirty million barrels of crude oil are consumed in this country monthly.

The tire manufacturers would have something to worry about if Henry Ford would build a tire factory.

Extension Outlines Exhausted.

President McVey and Dr. Edward Tuthill will deliver the lectures in the Citizenship Course before the Bourbon County Woman's Club October 6, 13, 20 and 27. As evidence of the interest in this subject, an Outline Course was prepared by Professor Tuthill for the Extension Department. The entire edition of 800 copies was quickly exhausted.

Goethals Society, sophomore engineers, met last week and selected the following officers: W. D. Nowlin, president; Sam Ridgeway, vice president and Allie Arnold, secretary and treasurer.

After the election, Dean Anderson addressed the meeting.

The freshman engineers at a meeting last week in Joseph Dicker Hall, elected the following officers: Dan Morse, president; Chas. Spilman, vice president; Edward Fitch, treasurer; Catherine Cleveland, secretary and Edward Perry, sergeant-at-arms.

The membership of the society totals one hundred and forty. Catherine Cleveland is the only woman in the freshman engineering class. The society name will be adopted at the next meeting.

After the election Dean Anderson spoke to the society on "The Possibilities of the Kentucky Engineer."

Norwood Mining Society held its first meeting of the year in the Mining Building Thursday night. This society is composed of the Junior and Senior Mining students. Topics of general mining interest were discussed.

V. L. Johnson, retiring president, will outline his summer work in the great copper mines of Arizona and John Drummy will discuss the modern steel mill he studied in Pittsburg last summer.

"Platonic Love."

Again the Senior engineer English class abounds in new thought. Professor Farquhar will hold the engineers, married men excepted, spell-bound with his lecture on "Platonic Love." The lecture will be supplemented with notes taken by Albert Muth during his recent roving.

Johnny Land arrived one hour late for economics Tuesday morning. Johnny caught the Yellow car at Broadway and was delayed by reason of transfer at Main and Lime.

Man who can't work without talking usually drift into the barbering profession.—Exchange.

PATTERSON LITERARY SOCIETY

Patterson Literary Society met Friday night for a short business meeting. A number of former members were out anxious to begin the work of the society as soon as possible. It was decided that a joint literary and business meeting would be held next Friday night, at which the names of prospective members will be voted upon and officers elected to fill the present vacancies in the executive personnel.

Nearly thirty men have applied for membership already and these with the old members will constitute a large society. The winner of the Southern Oratorical Contest and the majority of the varsity debaters were members of the Patterson society last year. The officers of the Patterson at present are: F. P. Bell, president; Robert Porter, vice president; A. L. Hodges, secretary.

SENATE WILL EXAMINE OTHER MARKING SYSTEMS

At the regular monthly meeting of the Senate in the Little Theatre Monday, October 11, at 3:45 o'clock the propriety of changing the rules affecting probation was again discussed. It came to no satisfactory agreement and the decision was deferred indefinitely. The marking systems of other universities are to be thoroughly investigated by the Senate before the final decision is given.

The University of California has, to date, a registration for 1920 of 9,444 students—50.3 per cent. being men, and 49.7 per cent. women. Their enrollment in the correspondence courses of the university numbers 42,000.

What We Did During Vacation.

Freshmen spent their summers— Studying a high school diploma.

Learning to shave.

Deciding which trunk to buy.

Devouring preliminary announcements 1919-20 and later preliminary announcements 1920-21 to find the only difference — Board $28 instead of $25.

Trying to convince mother that a hot water bottle and napkin ring would not be necessary.

Boasting over high school seniors.

Packing trunk.

Telling her goodbye.

Sophomores spent their summer— In joyous anticipation.

Juniors spent their summer— Wondering how they got to be Juniors.

Seniors spent their summer— Reading "Dignity—The Foundation of Success."

Post Grads spent their summer— In a vain attempt to find a position paying a salary equal to what their knowledge made them worth.

Professors spent their summer— (We are unable to find any data on this subject).
